Category: bardiglio

Colour: Grey

Petrographic name (according EN 12407): Marble

Macroscopic description: An aphanitic, compact dark grey lithotype with a cloudy appearance due to the presence of lighter-coloured flames and patches on a dark background. Abundant darkish veins occur that are submillimetric in size with a parallel orientation. These are very close to one another in places and anastomosed, forming dark grey sub centimetric bands. There are rare plurimillimetric sub rounded patches that are also dark grey in colour. The material has no surface porosity.
